Elevance Health and its affiliates (herein referred to as “Elevance Health”) understands that our Suppliers are independent entities. However, the business practices of our Suppliers may impact and/or reflect upon Elevance Health. It is for this reason that Elevance Health expects all Suppliers, their employees, agents, affiliates, and subcontractors (hereinafter referred to collectively as “Suppliers”) to adhere to the Elevance Health Supplier Code of Conduct while conducting business with or on behalf of Elevance Health. The Elevance Health Supplier Code of Conduct establishes minimum standards for conducting business with Elevance Health and provides additional clarification on policies relating to Suppliers specifically. To the extent of any conflict between this Supplier Code of Conduct and any other transactional document entered into by Elevance Health and Suppliers, the latter shall control.

Suppliers are required to understand and meet these and other requirements where applicable. The information contained herein is subject to change without notice.

Commitment to Integrity

Ethical conduct is central to Elevance Health's business. We promote a work environment of accountability, integrity, and trust. We are a signatory to the UN Global Compact, an international commitment to practice our business in accordance with principles related to human rights, labor, environment, and anti-corruption. We rely on our ecosystem, which includes you – our Suppliers – to uphold our ethical practices and reduce our risk. That is why we have a Supplier Code of Conduct. Please take the time to review the document in full and regularly, as we update it from time to time.

The Supplier Code of Conduct serves as the backbone of ethical business practices beyond what Elevance Health has direct control over. How Suppliers behave when conducting our business reflects on Elevance Health. Our customers, stakeholders, and regulators expect that we will conduct business with integrity and provide a quality product. In return, we expect the same of our Suppliers.

Protecting Our Information

Elevance Health has many types of information vital to conducting our business. This includes material and non-public information as well as other confidential and proprietary information about our:

- Strategies, products, processes, services, and financials.
- Members, providers, associates, vendors, agents, business partners, and government contracts.

Suppliers must never use or disclose our confidential or proprietary information unless authorized by Elevance Health policies in connection with a legitimate business need. In addition, Elevance Health cannot use or disclose a third party's confidential or proprietary information learned in the course of doing business with them without proper authorization and approvals.

Confidential and Proprietary Information About Our Business, Members, and Associates

Elevance Health's confidential and proprietary information includes any information not shared with individuals outside of the company and any information useful to our competitors. Suppliers must ensure confidential and proprietary information is used only when authorized by policy, for valid business purposes, and when authorized by the terms of the parties' agreement. Suppliers are obligated to protect this information from improper use or disclosure even after the engagement ends. Work product developed as Elevance Health Suppliers remains Elevance Health property. Suppliers may not take customer/member lists, formulas, processes, contracts, trade secrets, intellectual property, sales-related information, or any other confidential or proprietary information unless expressly permitted otherwise in writing and under Elevance Health policy.

For more information, please refer to the Elevance Health Code of Conduct, 'Protecting Our Information' section.

Privacy

Suppliers have a responsibility to protect the confidentiality of the Protected Health Information (PHI) and Personal Identifiable Information (PII) they collect, use, and disclose about our members and applicants.
